ABSTRACT

This 'high tech' era is marvellously impacting on all facets of life. The Nigerian family is no exception. Nigerian families are striving to keep pace with the changes which the globalized 'high tech' period is exerting on them. A good number of changes which have been brought to bear on the Nigerian families have been beautifully articulated in this paper. Broadly looking at the families in global perspective and the changes which they are currently experiencing, it is disheartening that Nigerian families are trailing behind the trends in changes in the families in the developed world. The areas in which Nigerian families are lagging behind in trends or developments in the families worldwide are pointed out and explained.
